

Governments, empires, religions past and present stake out their territorial claims with boundary lines.

Walls – unbreachable, invisible, proposed or ruined – delineate and isolate places of heightened meaning. Walls are simultaneously part of political and religious systems as well as highly

JERUSALEM : WALLS

17 - 24 MARCH

SEMINAR WEEK FS 2019

concrete artefacts. On this trip we will trace the powerful dynamics and conflicts that shape the architecture and urban space of Jerusalem, "the Walled City".

From the Ottoman city walls to the western wall of the temple mount, from the invisible boundaries demar-

10-22 PARTICIPANTS

major world religions and crucial to modern geopolitics. The material evidence of these walls will provide

COST FRAME D

cating the quarters of the old city to the contested separation wall dividing populations, we will consider how constructed boundaries have formed the complex urban fabric of a city holy to three our entry point into the complexity of Jerusalem's architectural history.

CHAIR FOR THE HISTORY & THEORY OF ARCHI-TECTURE

PROF.
MAARTEN
DELBEKE
ETH
D-ARCH
GTA