JURA

Asphalt, Absinth and Anarchism

Max: 25 Tourists
Budget: C
Dates: October 19-23

The jura mountain range separates the Rhine and Rhone basins. Inhabited since the iron age, its cultural land has been divided by political borders, religion and language. It has been the site of separatist movements and struggles for social emancipation and independence.

During the seminar week, we will hike the swiss jura mountains. We will explore mines and quarries, wander along rivers and past cloisters, watch birds, withstand thunderstorms and make a bonfire. We will meet artists and researchers. We will hear tales of precision and anarchism, of absinth production and entrepreneurial strategy, of empires, confederations, congresses and revolt, of global trade, tourism and population decrease, of extraction and spirituality, of erosion, power places and the jurassic age of reptiles. Along the way, we will practice writing (with Finn Canonica) and photography (with Tobias Wootton).
